WHEN IS INSURANCE NOT A GOOD BUY?

When the rate is so low, something has to "give" and that may take the form of restrictive clauses, poor service, "hard" settlements or corners that can be cut in many places.

One policy is as good as another until you have a loss, and when you do you want good service and a prompt settlement.

That's why most people do business with a local, independent agent.

"Again And Again"

TLY we are witnessing the ped-up political activities of a lection year. All means of comion are being used to promote paigns of aspirants for office Presidency on down to local The newspapers, radio, televigazines, etc. are being used to the hopes of countless hopenomination, and from now until mber elections, we will read n to appeals to His Eminence, Q Voter.

s all in the great American and is democracy at work.

space today we would like to o points. It was our privilege rt the availability of Honorable M. Abbitt for Fourth District man to succeed the late able legislator, P. H. Drewry, of burg. In that first campaign, bitt was opposed by a veteran ator, Honorable Morton Goodwindidie. It was nip and tuck, newspaper pleaded for Mr. Abused the argument that Mr. s the young and vigorous type uld serve our district so well would desire to re-elect him and again" to build up sen- prestige in service. Mr. Abin that election and has done all we knew he would do. He is a ranking member of the House Agriculture Committee, and has performed yeomen service for the district, and is now State Chairman of the Democratic Party, recognized and honored. As we expected, he has not faced serious opposition for continued service.

When the roll is called in Congress, Mr. Abbitt's name is first, because "ABB" leads the alphabetical list. Fine. When the roll is called in November, Abbitt's name will lead in the tally.

It adds up. Get yourself a good Congressman, and keep him there to earn top seniority. And we believe we hit the nail on the head 16 years ago when we said that we would work to keep Abbitt working for us and elect him again and again. On occasion we may disagree, but as far as Abbitt is concerned such occasions transpire with extreme rarity . . because we have a rare Congressman.

$64 Question

One of our subscribers proposed a $64 question: "It is possible that despite all of our education and progress that we can't learn from experience?"

Christian Citizens

Lesson for May 24, 1964

"Thank God for the policemen!" "Thank God for the soldiers!" you might not expect to hear such remarks, but they have been uttered, with the deepest sincerity, by many desperate people. A city in China, deserted by the government's troops, and not yet within reach of the rebel army, might for two or three dreadful days be without government of any kind. Mobs did what they pleased. Likewise in America, citizens of certain southern towns have had to live through nights of terror when the state police were nowhere and again mobs did what they pleased. So people who never even noticed policemen or soldiers, before, thank God for them once they have had the experience of living without any government at all.

The Government

Wherever human beings live in settled communities, there you will find government of some kind. Historically there have been all kinds, and we can see all kinds in the world today at the same time. At the time the New Testament was being written, all of its writers lived though no Bible writer was a citizen except Saint Paul. Now the absolute monarchy which was the form of the Empire at that time, was not what an American would like. There was no possible way of changing the Emperor.

Then and Now

So there was nothing much then that an individual could do about the Roman government. For the common man, politics did not exist. The only thing he could do was to accept the government, obey the laws, pay the taxes, and live as much of a life as he could. The representatives in government, you can get attention if not immediate action. And of course you, like the ancient Romans can pay taxes cheerfully and obey the laws and respect the law-enforcing arm of government. In a short sentence: As a Christian, you have a responsibility to your community to do all in your power to see that your city, county, state and nation are well and effectively governed.

What about Tyrants?

Almost ever since the days of Paul, his words about obeying the "powers that be" have been used to defend tyrants from criticism and attack. Kings in the Middle Ages thought they had a divine right to be kings. Political bosses today are leaders in their communities who do all in their power to see that your city, county, state and nation are well and effectively governed.

Almost ever since the days of Paul, his words about obeying the "powers that be" have been used to defend tyrants from criticism and attack. Kings in the Middle Ages thought they had a divine right to be kings. Political bosses today are leaders in religious than ancient kings, but just as greedy for power, to get and to keep it, as any Roman Caesar or any modern dictator. Did Paul mean, by his exhortation to obedience, that we are to take meekly any dictators or Hitler or Mao who comes along? Does Christianity support tyranny? No; said the early Christian martyrs, who died horrible deaths rather than obey the government's demands that they burn incense to Caesar or to pagan gods. So, said the Puritans to King Charles I. No, say the Hungarian freedom fighters. A tyrant is one who by his tyranny has lost the right to be considered a proper "ordained of God."

Pastor Speaks

As The Twig Is Bent

It's the conviction of the authorities in the field of child-care, that the patterns established in the first three years of a child's life determines the major patterns of behaviour for the rest of the person's life.

This being true, and much evidence supports this finding, how the "twig is bent" is vitally important. In the light of this fact one must conclude that a child has the right to be well-born. Physically, parents ought to be and do their best. It's always my policy to talk with prospective brides and grooms about these matters, and to urge them not only to take the "premarital" tests, but that they have thorough physicals. This is only fair to unborn children. Often where there are known deficiencies, these can be corrected.

But the emotional status of prospective parents are more important. Perhaps here is the most vital element of the "bending of the twig". A child is born with a "think" quiet as far as acquired traits are concerned. How well he is loved, and cared for help to bend his life. If the child does not experience love and security he will in all probability grow up to be unstable. If he does not have discipline it is likely his selfish traits may bend into want ing his way throughout life. And the world will not bow to these kind of demans.

The faith and love attitudes of parents are vitally important. They "pass on" these tendencies to their off - spring.

Much of this is done unconsciously by parents. Hve you ever been shocked to your senses by looking at your own child's activity? After all a child only knows that which he has picked up around him. And this is as much responsible for his bend of life as the built-in character traits. And by the time those built in traits come to the front the acquired one have broadened to behaviour patterns. This is why conversion is necessary.

So it is necessary that in those early years that a child be brought up in the "fear and admonition of the Lord." As the twig is bent so it will grow.

Many churches recognize the importance of a child's life, and provide training for their young. This is not a substitute for the home, but an attempt to supplement the child's early training in the things of the Lord. Take your child to church. Expose him to the reality of God. Being a creation of God he will respond, and that earlier than you may think!

What's In Name?

There's more in this name than the total letters of the alphabet! He's Gregorio Santiago Aurello Antonio Carrera, newly appointed historian at Appomattox Court House National Historical Park. "Greg" may fell quite at home at the Park, because note that there's one more "name" in the long official "Park" title than there is in "Greg's" official "handle". The "Antonio" section of his historian's name is his confirmation name— the rest was given to him by mother and father. Greg explains that his mother is Irish — his father, Spanish, but when it came to naming their son, father won out.
